The Prinz Law Office, *San Jose, CA, Principal

2003-present

Ms. Prinz provides technical business law advice to the founders and executives of technology and life sciences start-ups and mid-market companies, as well as in-house legal departments of large companies, focusing on the fields of software/SaaS, AI, hardware, digital health/health technology, biotech/life sciences, and privacy/tech compliance. Ms. Prinz advises clients on tech and life sciences business transactions with customers, licensees/licensors, resellers, suppliers & distributors, business partners, and buyers/sellers, primarily with respect to SaaS contracts, software licenses, digital health contracts, and other tech and health technology contracts. Her experience also includes tech and digital health reseller agreements, collaboration contracts, and AI contracts. Ms. Prinz also has an IP practice, where she manages trademark portfolios, negotiates patent and content licenses, and enforces intellectual property rights on behalf of clients, as well as a privacy law and compliance practice, where she advises clients on privacy and technology compliance issues and advises them on the drafting of privacy policies. Ms. Prinz not only works with companies in Silicon Valley as well as other parts of California, but also in developing technology hubs across the U.S. and in overseas markets such as Canada, Mexico, Central America, Europe, the United Kingdom, Australia, and New Zealand.

Pennie & Edmonds, *Palo Alto, CA, Senior Associate

2000-2003

Pennie & Edmonds was a NYC-based intellectual property boutique firm with an approximately 120-year-old history, which had satellite offices in Washington, D.C. and Palo Alto. While at Pennie, Ms. Prinz represented clients in the biotech, medical device, software, and semiconductor transactions space, and worked with start-up founders, middle-market executives, and the in-house departments of large companies world-wide on their IP licensing and transactional matters. Some highlights from Ms. Prinz's experience included representing clients in several acquisitions of life sciences companies, including one in Dublin Ireland, and representing a biopharmaceutical company in the cardiovascular drug space in the negotiation of a series of business agreements with group purchasing organizations. The firm closed its Palo Alto Office and ended all firm operations in December 2003.

Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis, *Atlanta, GA, Associate

1999-2000

Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis was a Philadelphia-based firm, which had a satellite office in the Atlanta market to support its taxation practice and grow a business practice in the Southeast. While at Schnader, Ms. Prinz worked closely with the firm's commercial litigation practice as well as its trust and estates practice, and also worked with the firm's corporate and securities practice. Some highlights from Ms. Prinz's experience at Schnader included her involvement in a highly publicized defamation lawsuit against a private university and the successful termination of an irrevocable trust created by an inventor. Ms. Prinz was also involved with financings of early-stage companies. The firm closed its Atlanta Office following her departure in 2004 and ended all firm operations in 2023.
